INDIANA.

Dramatic Suicide of a Rejected Lover Likely to Drive His Loved One Crazy.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WARSAW, Nov. 3 .- Asa Gay, a prosperous young farmer residing near the village of Etna Green, a few miles west of this city. called this morning at the home of Miss Eva Pottenger and asked her to become his wife. He had asked her the same question but a few days ago, and she had declined his offer. She again refused this morning, whereupon Gay seized her around the neck with his left arm and with his right hand placed a 38-calibre revolver to his head and fired, the ball penetrating his brain, causing instant death. Both stood high in the community in which they lived. Gay's brains and life blood bespattered Miss Pottenger's face and garments. It is thought she will lose her mind.

Went Away to Die in Shame.

HUNTINGTON, Nov. 3.-Word has been received of the death of Sexton Emley in Orlando, Ind. T. This case is a peculiar one. Mr. Emley was one of the most highly respected citizens of this place and held various offices, among them being county commissioner and county treasurer, and his record for honesty was unbroken. About two years ago he was compelled to pay a large number of debts for other parties for whom he had been security. This ruined him financially, and about a year ago some notes turned up, amounting to several hundred dollars, given by him and bearing the name of his brother, John W. Emley, as security. The latter denied having signed the notes, and accused his brother of forgery. This so preyed on Sexton Emley's mind that he became mentally unballanced and silently left home, since which time nothing was heard of him until the telegram announcing his death in the Indian Territory. His disappearance was a matter of the deepest regret among his many friends, as he was not generally believed to be guilty of the charge of forgery. It is doubtful if a death ever occurred that evoked as much sympathy here as this one.

Diminutive Baby. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WABASH, Nov. 3 .- Last night there was born to the wife of Frank Stone, near Wabash, a baby weighing exactly one and a half pound. The infant, a girl, is per-fectly formed in every respect and is but six inches in length, while its head will fit easily into an ordinary teacup. This is without doubt the smallest living child ever born in this part of the country.

BIG LOSS AT SAN FRANCISCO

Grand and Burlington Hotels and Other Property Destroyed by Fire, Entailing Damages to the Extent of Half a Million Dollars-Insurance Very Small-Boarding-House Inmates Injured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3 .- Fire was discovered at 3 o'clock this morning in Heuter Brothers & Co.'s paint-shop, under the Grand Hotel. The flames spread rapidly throughout the basement of the block bounded by Market, New Montgomery, Stevens and Second streets, and then spread to the first floor, occupied by the Hali Safe and Lock Company; Hill & Goldman, druggists' supplies; the Board of Trade rooms, the Pullman Palace-car Company's offic e, the Great Northern railroad ticket office and the rooms of the Syndicate Investment Company. The smoke in the meantime had aroused the irmates of the Grand and Burlington Hotels, and the frightened guests rushed to the sidewalk with what valuables they could carry. The fire soon shot up through the freight elevator in the rear of the Grand Hotel and a disastrous conflagration was looked for. The general alarm brought the remainder of the fire department to the scene.

The front of Hueter Bros. & Co.'s store blew out with a loud explosion, and large volumes of smoke poured out, almost overcoming the firemen. Jacob Underhill, a wine merchant, was overcome by the smoke in the Grand Hotel, and was carried out unconscious. Cashier Weeks, of the Grand Hotel, who is crippled, was almost over-come, when he was assisted out by the elevator boy. There were several other narrow escapes. By 5 o'clock the flames had spread along the eastern end of the block. bursting from the roof and windows. The wind was slight, and the efforts of the firemen to confine the fire within the block occupied by the Burlington and Grand Hotels were successful. About 6 o'clack the roof of the Burlington Hotel fell in, carrying part of the Grand. In a short time the interior of the Burlington was a wreck, and the front of the Grand, on Market street, together with the eastern end, adjoining the Burlington, was also a ruin. The western end was saved. The first floor of the Burlington, on Second street, was occupied by C. H. Hirst, millinery and novelties; C. P. Bowing, medicines; E. H. Wardell, window shades and fixings. These were gutted, as were also Hueter & Co.'s, the Board of Trade rooms and the Burr Folding-bed Company's place of business on Market street. The Southern Pacific and Central Pacific and other ticket offices under the Grand Hotel, together with Fay's saloon, were damaged by water. The Grand Hotel was opened in 1870 by Messrs. Johnson & Co., and at the time was considered one of the finest hotels in the world. It was four stories high and had a frontage of 200 feet on Market street. Two years ago about half of the block was leased to other parties and was called the Burlington Hotel.

The total loss, including buildings, stores, furniture and stock, is estimated at $500,000. The fire is believed to be due to spontaneous combustion of inflammable material in Heuter Bros. & Co.'s place of business. Mrs. Burlington estimates the loss on her furniture and fixtures at $20,000; insurance, $10, 000. Hueter Bros'. loss is $40,000. The Grand Hotel bar is badly damaged by smoke and water. The fine collections of minerals and exhibits of the State Board of Trade is believed to be an entire loss.

Boarders Injured by Jumping. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3 .- Fire caught in the basement of No. 15 Oak street, a boarding-house, early this morning, and made such progress before it was discovered that it cut off all exit by the doorways and stairs. A. S. Woodruff jumped from the second story, and was badly injured. He may die. Samuel Martin also jumped from a second-story window and broke both ankles. George Stover slid down a rope from the third story and disocated an ankle. The other boarders were rescued from the windows by the firemen. All the occupants of the house lost their effects. The loss is about $4,000. Other Losses by Fire.

MARSHALL, Ill., Nov. 3 .- The old St. Nicholas Hotel in Martinsville, a large twostory-and-a-half brick and frame building. and the only hotel in the place, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. SALT LAKE CITY, U.T., Nov. 8.—An extensive fire occurred at the mouth of the Ontario Eastern drain tunnel at an early hour this morning. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Fire, at 9 o'clock this morning, at Samuel White's Centennial carpet-mills, at Front street and Columbia avenue, caused damage to the building and stock estimated at $75,000; fully covered by insurance. Two prominent families are involved, and many lives will probably be lost before it is ended. Fonzo and Powell Hancock and George Norgher have been gunning for each other for some time. Yesterday morning Fonzo fired two shots at Norgher, but missed him. Later in the day Powell Haucock went to Norgher's house and the two men opened fire on each other. At the fourth shot Hancock fell dead. His brother and friends are now hunting Norgher with the intention of shooting him on sight. Friends have also rallied around Norgher, and as the principals are prominent men in their neighborhood and have many friends a bloody fight is expected.

THE EIGHTH DISTRICT.

Some Democratic History-Conservative Estimate of the Result.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Nov. 3 .- The speaking campaign closed here Saturday night, with a speech by Colonel Thompson, at the opera-house. It was the only speech the Colonel made this year, his absence on the Pacific coast with the government commission to select a site for a dry-dock occurring in the last weeks of the campaign. As was to have been expected, the opera-house was filled with admirers of "the old man eloquent." Many gray-haired auditors were there who, as boys, had heard him speak in campaigns long before the war. He spoke two hours and a half, and his remarkable voice was as clear and strong at the close as ever it was. The speaker's telling effort was to show the benefits of a protective tariff as compared with a revenue tariff, drawing the lesson from facts of his personal knowl-

The campaign closes in this congressional district with the prospect that Mr. Mount will be elected. There is no one who doubts that he has made many gains of Demo-cratic votes, and Republicans, of conserva-tive judgment, with full information, be-lieve that he has clearly overcome the seven hundred Democratic majority with which it was composed when it was made by the Legislature of 1885 for Mr. John E. Lamb's special benefit. He was defeated. however, as many Democrats in the district believed that too much had been done for him. Mr. Brookshire was elected by less than a hundred votes two years ago. Then the Lamb influence was exerted for him as strenuously as if Lamb himself were the candidate. Brookshire was a weak candidate while his opponent was strong. The Lamb people wanted Brookshire elected to show that they still held the district, and intending that his one term should serve as a healing period for the party, and that Lamb should be nominated in 1890. But, early this year, when the Lamb people began to assert their claim on the nomination, the anti-Lamb people, who had a regular political organization when they defeated him, began muttering, and Brookshire got the nomination by default. From that time to the present there has been a feeling of indifference, especially among Lamb Democrats, who realize that if Brookshire is elected he will be accepted as the young leader of his party in the district instead of Lamb, who has not lost his congressional aspirations. Mr. Mount is especially strong with the farmers, and the country precincts are very likely to surprise even his most sanguine friends. The following, however, is a very conservative estimate of the vote in the district, giving the county majorities:

Sullivan..... Clay.... 500 Parke .... .... Montgomery ..... Vermillion..... 200 Fountain..... 250 Vigo ...... 175 Totals......1,375 Mount's majority..... 175

ELEVENTH-HOUR RALLIES. Big Mass-Meeting at Bedford Addressed by Hon, Moses F. Dunn. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

BEDFORD, Nov. 3.-The largest and most enthusiastic political meeting of the pres ent campaign in this county was held at the Town Hall to-night. The large and spacious hall was so crowded that many were unable to enter. Hon. Moses F. Dunn, who for the past five months has been traveling in Great Britian, Norway, Sweden and Germany, and who has collested a vast amount of information with reference to the respective effects of free trade and protection there and here, was introduced to the audience and spoke for one hour and a half, making the best and strongest arguments for protection that have been produced here during the present campaign.
Mr. Dunn's unquestioned knowledge of many facts acquired by travel and observation, and his well-known ability as an orator, coupled with his sincerity and candor as a public speaker, enabled him to attack the doctrine of free trade in its weakest point and hold his audience spellbound. Many Republicans went away more determined protectionists than ever with their faith in free trade much dimin-

Meeting at Winchester.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WINCHESTER, Nov. 3 .- All preparations for holding the election here to-morrow having been completed, everybody turned ont to-night to hear Gen. Thomas M. Browne and Hon. James E. Watson make the closing speeches of the campaign. Standing room in the large hall was at a premium, so immense was the throng. General Browne's general review of the Republican party, its men and its measures was eloquent and enthusing. This was the only speech of any considerable length he has attempted during the campaign, owing to his poor health, and people expressed their appreciation of his work and worth in round after round of hearty applause. Hon. J. E. Watson's well-known ability as an orator was surpassed in his powerful speech this evening. It was a continued flow of firey logic and pointed wit. There never has been such good feeling among Republicans here as at this time. There seems to be a universal feeling of pride in the recent accomplishments of our Republican Congress and in the stand the party has everywhere taken for right.

Henry U. Johnson's Last Meeting.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. RICHMOND, Nov. 3 .- This was a proud night for Hon. Henry U. Johnson, and his meeting was a fitting finale to the splendid campaign he has made in the district as the Republican candidate for Congress, to succeed Gen. Thomas M. Browne. He spoke his last words at home to those who knew him best, and they were there to bear him in numbers beyond the capacity of the Grand Opera-house to accommodate. Crowds streamed away as though the meeting were over before it began, unable to get even standing room, which shows not only the appreciation entertained for him, but the earnestness with which Richmond Republicans go into battle to-morrow.

Bright Prospects. Special to the Imdianapolis Journal. KNIGHTSTOWN, Nov. 3.-The indications in this city on the eve of the election point to a largely increased Republican majority. The Republicans become more sanguine as the election draws near, and to-night they are confident of a glorious victory. The feeling of increasing confidence is the same throughout the county. Mock elections are to-night being held in every school-house and hall in the county, and the Republic-aus have learned well their lessons how to vote. Henry county may be counted on to largely increase her 1,400 majority.

FOUND A POT OF GOLD.

An Iron Kettle Containing $5,000 in Coin Discovered on a Farm in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3 .- On the old Rupert homestead, just west of Argentine, Kan., was found a pot of gold, Saturday, and by actual count the pot contained $5,-600 in coins, ranging from $1 to $20. John Rupert and James Halloway were excavating for a barn foundation on the site of an old stable. Rupert's pick struck something hard, and a few moments' work disclosed an iron kettle of about five gallons' capacity, and covered with an iron lid. When the lid was finally knocked off a shining heap of gold was revealed. There were coins of various values, many of them of dates preceding the Mexican war, and none of them later than 1854. Rupert and Halloway counted up their wealth and found nearly $5,000. It is believed that pot of gold was buried by the owner during the troublons border times just preceding the opening of the civil war, and it is probable that the owner was killed.

DEPEW AND CLEVELAND.

The Former Denies that He Indulged in a Florid Eulogy of the Latter.

Washington Special to St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The highly eulogistic remarks about Grover Cleveland attributed to Chauncey M. Depew in a florid report which has been quoted with exclamation points and excited and joyful comment by all the papers favorable to Mr. Cleveland all over the United States, and with surprise by those opposed to Mr. Cleveland and his political ideas, were not uttered by Mr. Depew. The language put in the mouth of Mr. Depew by this widely-circulated report was extravagant in its praise of the ex-President, and was said to have "thrilled" its hearers—the guests of John Russell Young at the dinner recently given by him at the Astor House to celebrate the elevation of his friend. Gen. Roger A. Pryor, to the bench. It began to be hinted about town that Mr. Depew did not really speak of Mr. Cleveland as "the typical American," or commit himself to any adulatory nonsense of the kind printed, and that, moreover, Mr. Cleveland did not, in fact, make an equally extraordinary reply, saying, it was reported, feelingly: "If what has been said of me is true, I occupy a prouder position than I ever dreamed of occupying." To-day Mr. Depew made a statement for publication in regard to the matter. "The dinner was a private one," said Mr.

Depew. "The invitations said, underscored, that 'there was to be no speaking.' It goes without saying that such intimations at an American dinner are never lived up to. It was an unusually brilliant gathering, both in the celebrity of the gentlemen assembled in their several occupation; and in the dash, snap and go of the whole entertainment. There were a great many speeches, and they were all good. The speaking was impromptu, and the plan was for a political opposite, as far as possible, to introduce his opponent. Any one familiar with New York entertainments knows that it is our habit on such occasions, if we say anything at all to contribute to the general enjoyment by saying the pleasantest things in the most cordial way. certainly have no desire to change anything I did say on that evening. I wasrequested to introduce Mr. Cleveland, which meant, of course, a speech from me in addition to the compliance with this formal matter. After indulging in a good deal of fun—a skit at Mr. Thomas Nast, who was present, for having caricatured me in a publication that day as a clown and jester, with cap, bells and parrot beak, upon the plain inti-mation that a man who had the faculty of humor and exercised it only for the pleasure and happiness which it might give to his friends, was either an idiot, a fraud or a fool-I then went on to describe General Sherman as a typical American with a freedom of statement which for any other man would be fulsome, but for him it never seems exactly to meet the case; and then, coming down to my subject, spoke of Mr. Cleveland as the best living type of what was possible under American institutions, a Buffalo lawyer, and a good one, suddenly made Governor of the great State of New York, and within a year President of the United States, a rise unprecedented in the history of free governments; and, coming to the presidential office without experience or training, l was bappy to say that, though I differed with him on every political opinion be had ever expressed and on the whole policy of his administration, yet he had so administered the government as to win the substantial support of his own party and the respect of his opponents.

"The extravagant laudations put in my mouth by the alleged report were not only never uttered, but I have sufficient confidence in Mr. Cleveland's good sense to believe that they would not have been accepted by him with the satisfaction which he expressed in regard to what I did say." "One thing is certain," added Mr. De-pew, with a broad smile, "that both Mr. Cleveland and myself made better speeches than the ones which have received such wide circulation, and which were written up, I understand, by a Democratic editor, who put in our mouths what he thought we ought to have said."

A Republican Orator Silenced.

Rochester Democrat. Edmund H. Deas will probably not make any more speeches in South Carolina during the present campaign. He is a colored man and a Republican candidate for Congress. While he was addressing a meeting in I'm-monsville Thursday a Democrat named J. Gully Jackson, sprang upon him with a knife and split his mouth open on one side nearly to the ear. Thus while Mr. Deas's mouth was not exactly closed, it was rendered temporarily untit for use. The close of the debate was a great Democratic vic-

The Circle of Fruits.

Country Gentleman. A young land-owner, who has recently undertaken to plant his place with fruit which will give him a supply the year through, inquires what general amount of each kind would be proper for setting out. In answer, it is well to remark in the first place, that such fruits as ripen quickly in summer and do not last long should be in smaller quantity than long keepers. But when different varieties of the same kind give a succession more will be wanted than if they all come at once. The strawberry is the first in the season to ripen, but by planting the earliest and latest varieties with intermediate ones a succession may be had for more than a month. The earliest cherries are nearly as early as straw-berries. A few weeks later the earliest pears, and apples, and apricots ripen, closely followed by raspberries and afterwards by blackberries. By the first of September a proper selection will give several fine apples, a number of excellent pears, some delicious plums and a throng of admirable peaches. Grapes mature nearly as soon, and may be made to give a succession till late in the fall, and with care and skill in packing they will last well into winter. A family supply may be afforded by planting from five to ten square rods of strawberries, half a dozen early and late cherries, two or three square rods of raspberries, and as many blackberries, three or four apricot trees (in localities where this fruit succeeds), half a dozen each of early pears and apple trees, a quarter of an acre of grapes. and a dozen trees each of autumn and winter apples and pears. It should not be forgotten that care and skill in management will supply ten times the amount furnished through neglect; and that a large surplus may result from the plantings required for scarce seasons. A proper selec-tion of varieties is of vital importance.

No farmer should hesitate and delay in a useless effort to learn which breed is best, but should only decide which he wants, and when secured, if he breed, feed and care for it in accordance with the highest knowledge of the day, he will never find time nor have the disposition to consider the probability or the possibility of another breed being better. His business is to go ahead, and in that he is all right. -Maine Farmer.

A Poverty-stricken Millionaire!

This seems a paradox, but it is explained by one of New York's richest men. "I don't count my wealth in dollars," he said. "What are all my possessions to me, since I am a victim of consumption? My doctor tells me that I have but a few months to live, for the disease is incurable. I am poorer than that beggar yonder." "But," interupted the friend to whom he spoke, "consumption can be cured. If taken in time, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will eradicate every vestige of the disease from your system." "I'll try it," said the millionaire, and he did: and to-day there is not a healthier, happier man to be found anywhere. The "Discovery" strikes at the seat of the complaint. Consumption is a dis-ease of the blood—is nothing more nor less than lung-scrofula - and it must and does yield to this wonderful remedy. "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only an acknowledged remedy for that terribly fatal malady, when taken in time and given a fair trial, but also for all forms of Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases, as White Swellings, Feversores, Hip-joint Disease, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas and kindred ailments.
